UDDERLY
MOO-MAZING
FACT:

WHAT DO COWS EAT?

A cow that is producing milk eats about 100 pounds each day of feed, which is a combination of hay, grain, silage, and proteins (such as soybean meal), plus vitamins and minerals. Cows are the ultimate upcyclers and can eat things humans can't, including fuzzy cotton seed, spent brewer grains, and more. Farmers employ professional animal nutritionists to develop scientifically formulated, balanced and nutritious diets for their cows. Cows also need fresh, clean water.
